AMERICAN Versus FILIPINO

By Major General ELWELL S. OTIS, Ex-Military Governor of the Philippines

CAN SCARCELY BELIEVE THAT THE INHABITANTS OF OUR NEW POSSESSIONS WILL EVER INDULGE IN THE SAME MENTAL REFLECTIONS OR PURSUE THE SAME AVENUES OF THOUGHT THAT WE DO.

Our political system, our domestic institutions, our habits of life, are but the perfected results obtained by a race true to its early instincts, following its tendencies as if led by an inexorable fate. Our religious beliefs, our laws for the government of society and political bodies and our social practices are all spontaneous. The educated, practical individualism which pervades American civilization and which is its life is the slow growth to our people and part ancestors.

It is this civilization that you are an upon the people of our possessions. They have civilization, acute mental faculties, keen perceptions, lively imaginations, logical abilities and aesthetic culture. BUT CONSIDERED AS CLASSES NATURAL DECEIT HAS NEVER BEEN SUPPLANTED BY AN INNATE LOVE OF TRUTH. CHARACTERISTIC CRUELTY HAS NEVER BEEN DISPLACED BY THE DICTATES OF EDUCATED HUMANITY, NOR HAS THE NATIVE DESIRE FOR RETALIATION GIVEN WAY TO A LOVE OF JUSTICE NOR LICENSE TO THE UNCHANGING FORMS OF LAW. Within the same province or territory the fairly educated and densely ignorant both may be found, the latter being very largely predominant.

which you have inher- deavoring to impress recently acquired island their own system of civ- faculties, keen percep- tions, lively imaginations, logical abilities and aesthetic culture.

Some things a boy

can buy with twenty dollars ready money

The lazy boy thinks there is no use trying to get the money prize offered, for Schilling's Best baking powder coupons—

"Some other fellow is sure to get it."

That's true, somebody will get the twenty dollars cash, and some others will be as sure to get the other cash prizes to be paid this month.

This is our plan:

SCHILLING'S BEST COUPON CONTEST.

To the contestant who obtains the greatest number of coupons from cans of Schilling's Best baking powder we will give $20 in gold; to the second $15; to the third $12.50; to the fourth $10; to the fifth $7; to the sixth $5; to the seventh $4; to the eighth $3; to the ninth $2.50; to the tenth $2; to the next 19 one dollar each. This will be repeated each month for four months. (For October, November, December this year and for January 1902.)

Simple, isn't it? And all that is necessary is to cut out and sign the below, place it in an envelope with the coupons, address "Schilling's Best coupon contest," San Francisco. It must be posted before mid-night on the last day of the month.

CUT THIS OUT.

SCHILLING'S BEST COUPON CONTEST.

The coupons enclosed herewith were collected by Name.....

Post office.....

County..... State.....

The prizes will be distributed the sixth day after each contest closes. The names and addresses of the winners will be published in this paper. It is not necessary that all the coupons shall have been collected in one month. Save them for several months if you like and continue with your missionary work until you feel satisfied that the number of coupons obtained will secure you a prize. All coupons, however, once entered will be destroyed at the close of each contest.

A GREAT Northwestern Exposition

When William Cullen Bryant wrote in "Thanatopsis"—

Loose thyself in the continuous woods Where rolls the Oregon and hears no sound Save his own breathing—the superlative of solitude and remoteness was the idea he sought to convey. Indeed when the poem was written in 1811 imagination could hardly have pictured a region more inaccessible and farther remote from civilized habitation than the unexplored northwestern territory between the headwaters of the Missouri river and the Pacific ocean.

It was only a few years before—six years, to be precise—that the intrepid explorers Captain Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark and their heroic little band of followers made the first incursion into the boundless wilderness. The foot of white man had not before pressed this virgin soil, though in 1792 Captain Robert Gray, with a Boston ship on a voyage around the world, entered the "great river of the west" and named it from his vessel the Columbia.

The United States interpreted Captain Gray's exploration of the river as giving under the law of nations governing the rights of discovery a claim to the whole valley of the river, but for so vast a region there was needed the claim of further exploration and occupation, which came in good time. It was doubtless to make good this claim of discovery and perhaps to connect it with the Louisiana purchase, effected in 1803, that congress, upon the recommendation of President Jefferson, authorized the Lewis and Clark expedition.

This expedition, the record of which forms one of the most interesting and thrilling, though perhaps least familiar, chapters of American history, started from St. Louis in the middle of May, 1804, proceeding up the Missouri river. Forty-five persons in three row-boats comprised the party. After 171 days the year's advance ended with October, when the river began to freeze, checking their farther progress. Winter quarters, where they were detained about five months, were established thirty miles above the Bismarck of our day. The distance up stream they reckoned at 1,000 miles. They had traveled a little more than nine miles a day, a journey now made by rail in forty-four hours.

Early in April, 1805, the explorers, now numbering thirty-two, again began to urge their boats up the river. Through the great lone land they groped their dark and perilous way. In twenty days after the spring start they reached the Yellowstone, and in thirty more they sighted the Rocky mountains, still far in the distance. Making the portage at the Great falls cost them a month's perplexing delay. Telling on another month brought them on Aug. 12 to a point where Captain Lewis stood with one foot on each side of the rivulet and "thanked God that he had lived to bestride the mighty Missouri, heretofore deemed endless." They dragged their canoes, however, five days longer. It was 400 days since they left the mouth of the river, and their mileage on its waters had been 3,000. A mile farther they stood on the great divide and drank from springs that sent their waters to the Pacific.

Obtaining horses and a guide from the Shoshone Indians, they traveled through the mountains until the latter part of September, when they entered the plains of the western slope. Early in October they were able to embark in logs that they had burned hollow upon a branch of the Columbia river, which affray manifold portages and perils, bore them to its mouth and the goal of their long and hazardous pilgrimage late in November, 1805, over eighteen months from the time the party left St. Louis, during which they had covered 4,000 miles.

It is the one hundredth anniversary of this achievement that it is proposed to commemorate with an exposition at Portland in 1905. It was certainly an achievement worthy to be commemorated. It practically gave validity to the title of the United States to that great area subsequently known as the Oregon territory, from which latter was formed the whole of three states of the larger size and considerable parts of three others. It opened the way for westward development and gave us our first foothold on the Pacific.
